Winning Essay on Late Va. U. D. C. Leader

(Note: The following essay was a U. D. C. prize winning essay, by our friend, Mrs. Cabell Smith, of Rocky Mount, Va., on the life and services to the U. D. C., of the late Miss Annie Mann, of Petersburg.)

Miss Annie V. Mann, Her Devotion And Loyalty And Contributions To The Virginia Division, And General United Daughters of The Confederacy.

Perhaps in the complete annals of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, there has never been a more interesting and unique figure than that of Annie V. Mann, of Petersburg, Virginia.

She was born January 4th, 1871, while the angry scar of the War between the States was still bleeding in the hearts of her parents. Her father, Richard Henry Mann, had served valiantly throughout the four years of conflict. Her mother, Adelia Ann Jones, had been driven from her home, "Double Chimneys," when Yankee cannons had twice struck the walls. This home, on the Old Crater Road, bore the tragic ravages inflicted by the enemy when the house was demolished, by the inroads of business, in the early part of 1850.

Mrs. Mann escaped with her children, in a box car, taking refuge with relatives at Appomattox, where she remained until after the events there, on April 9th, 1865.

It is not remarkable that a daughter born so soon after those trying days, in an atmosphere still tense with the aftermath, should have instilled in her very existence a love for the Confederacy, to which her parents had given so much, and a loyalty that was the inspiration of her life.

Brought up in this home where a Confederate Soldier was always welcomed as a hero, and must be so recognized, she began early to experience the meaning of true hospitality. This characteristic remained a definite part of her entire future.

In 1896, Annie joined the Petersburg Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. This Chapter was then a part of the Old Grand Division, with Mrs. Meade, of Petersburg, its gracious President. When two Divisions united in 1906, Annie Mann gave her talent and her young strength to fostering good will in the United Division, and to the service of the A. P. Hill Camp, U. C. V., then one of the strongest Camps in Virginia. As long as a Confederate Veteran remained in Petersburg, this Camp celebrated the 19th of January with a banquet which was always a noted event in the City's history. Many of their records contain her name, as she never allowed any of her many activities to interfere with her attendance at the meetings of her beloved veterans.

When the final summons came to the last of this honored host, she women of her Chapter still met on the 19th of January as a memorial to them. Their last meeting was held on January the 19th, 1959, just a few months before she went to join them.

The recorded services of this valuable woman to the Virginia Division began early by the successful achievements of all committees to which she was appointed. She soon became an officer, and a member of the Executive Board. From that time, her attendance at all Division and General Conventions, her recognized ability as speaker, and her intimate knowledge of all details of the work, made hers a welcome presence wherever there was a Confederate gathering.

Her constant interest in the Children of the Confederacy, manifested by her continued attendance whenever and wherever they assembled, and her unfailing devotion and support of the "9th of June" Chapter, C of C, made her one of the Chief Counsellors of this group

As Recording Secretary of the Virginia Division, when the entire responsibilities of the Minutes devolved upon her, she rendered a record which brought general acclaim.

Later, as Division President, her work is recorded in the Minutes, and needs no comment.

Before the by-laws prohibited the additional recognition of outstanding work, she was made Honorary President of the Division.

Miss Mann served on the Committee which signed the agreement with Dr. Henry Lewis Smith, regarding a Custodian of Lee Chapel at Lexington. Of course, the agreement later became the Magazine of the U. D. C.

Her end, in her eighty-eighth year, was peaceful and serene. A few moments before her death, she dictated a message to be sent to her intimate friends. Many of these friends assembled in historic Blanford Church, from which she was carried to her final resting place, near her long lost relatives.

No Daughter of the Confederacy who knew Annie Mann, can ever forget her.

Mrs. Cabell Smith.

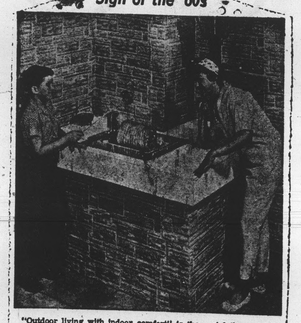
Sign of the '60s



"Outdoor living with indoor comfort" is the social theme of the 1960's.

Americans by the thousands are abandoning the dining room table for the patio picnic bench, the kitchen stove for the barbecue grill, and the television set for the croquet set.

Chief reasons for the trend is the population shift from crowded cities to suburban and rural areas, and the development of time-saving appliances making outdoor living practical.

Among the new developments is this outdoor liquefied petroleum gas "drop-in" rotisserie and vertical infra-red broiler, which makes backyard barbecuing child's play. LP-Gas is widely used in suburbs and rural areas to provide automatic gas service beyond the mains.

Twin radiant LP-Gas burners provide fast, clean heat to assure the tastiness of outdoor cooking with indoor convenience.

The LP-Gas rotisserie unit—equipped with a sausage wheel—cooks fowl, roasts, ham, shish kebab, and sausages to a tee. And the unit converts in moments into a vertical broiler with adjustable racks which "pamper cooks" steaks, chops, hamburgers and sausages.

The unit may be neatly covered when not in use. Home planners have a choice of colors to match the porch or patio decor.
